Hours before the body of Mr. Whitney arrived at the church, even before the private service over the remains of the great financier in his late residence, at No. 871 Fifth avenue, had begun, Broadway and the side streets began to congest.

Every minute brought more people, until Inspectors Cortright, Smith and McLaughlin, in charge of the police arrangements, decided that the police lines must be extended as far north as Fourteenth street.

In all there were some five thousand persons around the church. The sole idea of each and every man and woman was to get near enough to break into the church when admission was given to the public, and, with that in view, a number shinned over the ralises around the church and tried to conceal themselves from the public. They were discovered and removed.

A long hawser was fastened to the dock and to another barge a considerable distance from the dock. Track sild down the hawser, and keeping his balance by holding with one hand and both feet on the hawser, managed to lean over and fasten a rope about Heber with the other hand.

Heber was then pulled to the dock. He was in a state of collapse, but was resuscitated after being taken to the boiler room of the Thomas S. Brennan, a Department boat, lying alongside. The typhoid that has Senator Hanna in its grip has been his companion in food since last Monday. He has had recurrent fevers and extreme pains in the abdomen and limbs. No one but his wife and physicians is allowed to see him. In addition to his physical ills he has had much mental wor, y and his nervous (ystem is impaired.
